MADE A GREAT NOISE

Robert Craven Greatly Annoyed His Neighbors.

INVADDED THE ALEY RESIDENCE

Not Content With Home He Went Visiting. Shouted and Screamed Until the Officer Arrived—Working on the Nash Case With Success—Bound to Court.

Bob Craven, a resident of Walnut street, whose face has been seen on more than one occasion at city hall, was locked up last night.

Craven is employed at the Knowles plant, and occasionally fills himself full of all kinds of whisky. Yesterday was a special occasion, and evening and Robert rolled around together. Evening had an advantage over Robert—it could keep still, and was in no danger of arrest and imprisonment. But Craven forgot all about the law and failed to remember that such annoying parties as minions of the law were a part of the city. Not content with his own home he wandered into the house of I. Aley, and displayed his qualifications as a shouter. He cheered and screamed and yelled himself hoarse, refusing to cease, and in other ways proving himself a nuisance. A patrol alarm was sent in, and Officer Terrence and McMillen soon had the noisy Robert locked securely in jail. He was fined $7.70 today.

The police have not yet located the men who assaulted and robbed Reverend Nash near the Thompson pottery last Saturday night, but developments are expected before many days have passed.

George Thompson was the name given by a man arrested today by Chief Johnson for stealing brass from Patrick Costello. The man got away with a steam gauge and other articles of value last Tuesday, and has been wanted since that time. He was given a hearing, and bound to court. In default of the $200 asked by Mayor Gilbert he will be sent to Lisbon tomorrow. Thompson is a stranger in the city. The authorities know nothing about him, and believe the name is assumed for the occasion.

WARM COMMENDATION.

This Fellow's Hatred Did the News Review Good.

Yesterday afternoon, at the corner of Sixth and Broadway, a notorious and cowardly lawbreaker used the very vilest and most profane and vulgar language, directed against the News Review and its manager. A true gentleman and staunch Republican (Republican from principle) called the braggart and bully down, cutting even his thick hide with well deserved and justly applied reproof, telling him that the News Review had first flung McKinley's name to the breeze, and that the manager of the Review was a life-long Republican. The lawbreaker and bully subsided for a time, and then, coward like, when his reproof passed by, renewed his crazy and unclean mouthings. The ill will and hate of this miserable creature is warm commendation, in the minds and hearts of all decent and well-behaved and law-abiding citizens, and this paper has justly earned the hatred of such poltroons. By the way, the fellow had better have a care and use that vile mouthpiece and evil tongue a little carefully, as rumor has it that he will not do honest work, but that he is even now engaged in dishonorable practices and pursuits, which may, ere long, bring him before a bar of justice.

WILL TRY IT AGAIN.

Council May Have a Meeting Tomorrow Night.

The street railway ordinance is an important matter which the excitement of the election has not allowed time for consideration. Mr. Purinton said this morning that another attempt would be made to gather a quorum tomorrow evening. The ordinance as given in the News Review a few days ago, will be the only subject for discussion.

IN CLARKSON.

They Will Celebrate In the Old Fashioned Way.

If the weather permits, the residents of Clarkson will celebrate the election of McKinley tonight in an old fashioned way. People from adjacent villages will be on hand to participate. Several other communities north of the city will observe the glorious victory on Tuesday.

BLACKED HER EYE

A Wucherer Man Will Not Again Abuse His Wife.

Parties residing in Wucherer addition have a grievance against a man who is never so happy as when abusing his wife. He thrashed her on Saturday, and so abused the poor woman that she was ill for several days. Not content with this, he again struck her yesterday morning, blacking her eye and covering her with bruises. They are unusually law-abiding people in that part of town, they say, or they would give him a liberal dose of his own medicine; but the next time it occurs he will be reported to the police.

A DISGRACEFUL ROW.

The Police Should Have Made Some Arrests.

Thomas Lound and a boy named Farmer were talking politics in front of a Sixth street saloon last night when Cliff Dawson appeared, and shouted for Bryan. He wanted to fight at once, and in a minute the air was filled with the vilest of profanity. The most disgraceful of language was used, and the crowd packed so closely around the principals that fighting was impossible. A telephone message brought the police, who scattered the crowd.

BOTH BOLTED.

But One Didn't Want It to Get Out.

A farmer who has voted the Democratic ticket many times approached a man who has always been numbered among the untutored in the city with, "Well, we've lost it again. What are we going to do about it?"

"What do you mean by we?" asked the other. "I voted for McKinley this time."

"Did you?" was the surprised interrogation. "Don't give it away, but I did, too."

IN A BAD WAY.

Thompson Was Crippled and Had a Sore Arm.

William Thompson was the name of a man who called on the township trustees this morning and wanted aid. The man was severely crippled, and had a running sore on his arm. He stated that he came from Westmoreland county, Pa., where he had been in the infirmary, and was on his way to Hot Springs. The trustees very generously offered to send him to the infirmary and give him proper medical treatment, but he declined their offer and left the office.

DOWNED THE DOG.

But the Wheelman Went to Earth With Him.

A wheelman, who scorching through Second street at a rapid rate this morning, collided with a big dog. The animal was run over, but succeeded in throwing the rider to earth. He was not badly hurt and his bicycle was without damage, but he was a sorry looking spectacle when he arose, covered with mud. Before the crowd could inquire his name he mounted his wheel and disappeared down the street.

COMPLETED TOMORROW.

Will Be the Wrapping of the Bridge Cables.

The wrapping of the bridge cables has progressed so rapidly that tomorrow afternoon will see the task completed. Already the hangers are being placed in position, and in a few days will have advanced so that work on the floor can be commenced. The only thing now needed is good weather, and with this for a month or two the contractor will be ready to hand the bridge over to the company the first of the year.

BOND ISSUE CARRIED.

The Board Will Pass a Resolution on Monday.

The report of the bond vote, as given in the News Review last night, allows the board of education to sell $18,000 in bonds, the money to be used in making repairs and paying the notes held by the banks. The board will meet Monday evening, and a resolution will be passed authorizing the sale of bonds. It will be the regular meeting of the board.

NO LEGAL MEASURES.

The Hauling of Gravel From the Old Cemetery Will Cease.

Unless all indications fail legal measures will not be required to end the practice of hauling gravel from the old cemetery. The parties were notified by Solicitor Grosshans that the practice must cease, and they sent word they would end it as soon as they had hauled away what sand they had sifted.

MILLER WANTS HIS MONEY.

The Fisherman Sued Boyd For His Due.

John Miller, the fisherman who became involved in a quarrel with David Boyd, his employer, last week, and was fined for the part he took in the disturbance, has entered suit in the court of Squire Morley against Boyd. Miller sues for $10.30 which he claims is due him as wages.

—Roberts Foutts, of Chicago, is visiting in the city.

NOT UNTIL SATURDAY

Will the Republicans Celebrate the Victory.

RESPECT FOR JAMES H. GOODWIN

Caused the Change to Be Made This Morning—It Will Allow More Time For Preparation, and the Demonstration Will Be a Big One.

There will be no jollification tonight the celebration having been postponed until Saturday evening.

This action was taken this morning, and is in respect for the late James H. Goodwin, whose funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon. When it became known last evening that the central committee had arranged for the demonstration this evening many of the friends of the dead manufacturer openly expressed the hope the date would be changed. The matter was explained to the leaders, and the announcement made.

The action of the committee was heartily commended on every hand. Mr. Goodwin was not only a leading resident of the city, but was long identified with the Republican party. Another phase of the matter is the improvement in the arrangements. A delay of a few days will allow preparations for a much better parade, and those who are at the head of the movement will not waste the time given them.

STILL AT IT.

That Consolation Meeting Only Adjourned For Sleep.

The consolation meeting of the Bryanites only adjourned for slumber last night, and convened again this morning. Some of the faithful looked sad and weary, but the bogus news of Bryan gains had bolstered up their drooping spirits, and they were gay as usual. The leading spirit was present, and grasping his pencil in one hand and the Pittsburgh Post in the other he began for action.

"West Virginia is ours," he declared, and, on his honor, Indiana belongs to us. We will get Oregon, California and South Dakota." Then he made a careful estimate, and announced that Bryan had 235; McKinley, 212—his "figures of a week ago." The announcement was not received with the enthusiasm of conviction, and when some one discovered the Post editorially conceding McKinley 267, the bottom dropped out of the celebration, and the consolation business was resumed. "If Bryan is defeated he has made the most noblest fight of all," declared one of the faithful, but even this did not raise applause.

AN UNFOUNDED REPORT.

Some People Believed Bryan Was a Winner.

East Liverpool has not yet recovered from the election, and few people are at work today.

Bright and early this morning some one started the report that later returns were showing down the big Republican vote, and McKinley was in danger. The origin of the senseless report could not be found, but it spread with great rapidity, and the telephone of the News Review rang continuously for half an hour. A crowd gathered at the News Review, and everybody was hungry for news. At length a special came in from Chicago. It was the first of the morning's news, and was immediately put on the big board in the window. It gave McKinley 260 electoral votes, with a possibility of 17 others. This was in line with the announcement of this paper last night, and satisfied the crowd. A cheer went up and they went away satisfied.

A FENCE RAIL

Came In This Morning From McKinley's Farm.

A week ago Frank H. Croxall was in Minerva, and talked politics to some of the rock ribbed of that place. When he was about to take the train one of them said he would send a fence rail from McKinley's farm, near that place, if he was elected, and Mr. Croxall believed him. This morning the rail arrived by express. It is a fine piece of chestnut, and was tied around with red, white and blue ribbons. Mr. Croxall had the rail put in a safe place, and proposes to keep it. The sender was Fred Walker.

DUG BRYAN'S GRAVE.

West Virginia Farmers Settle an Election Bet.

A prominent farmer of Grant district wagered with two of his friends that they should give him a day's work if McKinley was elected, and he was to toil for them should Bryan win. Yesterday morning they accepted the result of the election in Chester, and the winner took his friends to the top of the highest hill he could find, and providing them with pick and shovel told them they were to dig a grave for Bryan's political hopes. All day they toiled, but the rain would not allow the many invited guests to attend the funeral in the evening. The gentlemen are Joseph Allison and J. O. Martin.

MCKINLEY IS ALL RIGHT.

He Has Enough Electoral Votes and to Spare.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—[Special.]—The last report gives McKinley 264 electoral votes and Bryan 163. There are yet a number of states in doubt, but not enough electoral votes are out to give the election to Bryan. Kentucky will not make known its entire vote until tomorrow, and it may be Friday night before the exact result is known. It is generally conceded that tomorrow morning will tell the story.

California, Indiana, Oregon and West Virginia are Republican beyond doubt, and Kentucky is claimed by the Republican committee although considered a doubtful state. Texas is conceded to Bryan.

THE COUNTY VOTE.

What the Official Count For the Heads of the Tickets Show.

LISBON, Nov. 5.—[Special.]—The official count of the county was pushed through as rapidly as possible today, and this afternoon the votes given the first elector on each ticket was completed, with this result:

Republican 9,487, Democratic 6,524, Prohibition 243, Nationalist 38, National Democratic 28, Socialist 20.

IT COST THEM MONEY.

Local Bryanites Went Down In Their Pockets.

The campaign in this city cost the local Bryanites some money, and now that they know their efforts have come to naught they are disgusted. They sent out a great deal of literature, and their other expenses cost them more than some members of the party think they were justified in putting into the contest. The only consolation they have is in the fact that they got more than 500 votes in town, and some of them won money.

ONLY A CANARD.

There Is No Truth In This Democratic Story.

Some irresponsible Democrat of the city telephoned to Wellsville this afternoon that the Republicans here were weakening, and had postponed their jollification out of fear of defeat. The story is a lie without trimmings, and every sane man in town knows the parade was deferred out of respect for the late James H. Goodwin.

THOUGHT IT WAS A COON.

But It Was Only a Poor Little Kitten.

Out on the hills above the china works last night a dog began to bay. He kept it up so long that the people were aroused, and a few confident Republicans felt sure the canine had treed a coon. They started for the top of the hill and found the dog at the foot of a tree. An agile member of the party hastened to climb the tree, while the others waited with bated breath. "I've got it," he shouted, and the next instant came sliding down the tree, but he had no coon. He carried a kitten.

A GLORIOUS RIDE.

Angus McBane Rode and George Boyd Pushed the Barrow.

Wheelbarrow bets are being paid much to the amusement of the crowds. Promptly at the appointed time George Boyd appeared in the Diamond last night with a wheelbarrow. Angus McBane climbed into the barrow, four Democrats with red fire took their places on each side, and the march around the block began. A great crowd cheered the procession until the debt was paid. Frank Allison and Joe Winters settled their bet at Sebring's late this afternoon.

ENJOYED THE OCCASION.

The Employees of the Sebring Plant Celebrated With a Dance.

The dance given at Brunt's yesterday afternoon and evening in honor of the election of McKinley by the employees of the Sebring Pottery company was a most enjoyable affair. None but employees of the plant were admitted, and the crowd was probably the best natured ever seen in the hall, as all enjoyed the occasion as best they could.

HASSEY WAS VIOLENT

While Being Taken to the Asylum at Newburg.

HE OWNED A RAILROAD COACH

Superintendent Riddle Had to Hire an Assistant—Jack Broke Windows In the Car and Scared the People A Damage Suit.

LISBON, Nov. 5.—[Special.]—Jack Hassey, the East Liverpool man who was taken to the infirmary a few weeks ago, is now in the Newburg asylum, but he was only taken there after a great deal of trouble.

Hassey was often violent at the infirmary, and a place was found for him at Newburg as soon as possible. Superintendent Riddle started north with him yesterday, and Hassey showed signs of uneasiness soon after they left Lisbon. Just before they reached Niles he owned the car. He was so wild that no one could control him, and in his fury he began breaking the windows. He shouted so that he terrified all the people in the car, and only after a desperate struggle did the superintendent finally regain control of him. Riddle succeeded in hiring a man to assist him, and at length landed Hassey safely in Newburg.

Sheriff Gill was today notified by the authorities of Jefferson county that a suit for $10,000 had been entered against J. M. Kelly, of Steubenville, and W. E. Smith, of Wellsville, by C. Venuohit. The claim is for coal claimed to have been mined from the plaintiff's land without permission.

RESUMED OPERATIONS.

McKinley's Election Is Already Being Felt In Lisbon.

LISBON, Nov. 5.—[Special.]—The plant of the United States Fireclay company began operations this morning after an idleness extending through six months. The condition of trade would not permit the management to pile up a big stock, and the works were sent down. The announcement was made at the office today that the plant will work full time during the winter. Over 200 people are given employment.

MAY PLAY AT TORONTO.

A Game Is Being Arranged With Steubenville.

Manager McSwiggen, of the Acme football team of Steubenville, this morning telephoned the manager of the Eclipse club that he had made arrangements to play the Eclipse at Toronto, Saturday. This was news to the home boys, but it is probable they will gather a team and play the game. They want to even matters with the Steubenville team.

HARD WORK

To Keep the Small Boy In School These Days.

Truant Officer Beardmore is making but little effort this week to keep track of the children who are not attending school, as the contract would be far too large for one man. After the excitement of the election has passed he will once more get down to business, and the small boy will be compelled to cease his celebrations and go to school.

THE GAS FLASHED.

And Landlord Lakel Has a Very Sore Face.

C. E. Lakel, proprietor of the Second street hotel, had his face burned by an explosion of gas this morning. He put a lighted match in a grate, and the explosion followed, a leak having allowed the gas to accumulate. Mr. Lakel's face was burned, but the wounds are not severe although his face is very sore.

HARD ON BUNTING.

The Rain Sadly Changed the Appearance of Flags.

The rain of today had a damaging effect on the bunting that decorates the majority of the prominent business houses and potteries. Instead of being composed of three beautiful colors, the rain has caused the colors to run until now it is hard to tell what color the bunting really is.

Nothing In It.

It was reported on the streets early yesterday morning that William Brunt, Sr., was dead. This morning rumor had it that he was seriously ill. There is absolutely no truth in either report, as Mr. Brunt is at present enjoying the best of health.

Settling a Bet.

Page Myler and George Cochran are to go hunting to settle an election bet. Now that McKinley is elected Myler will have all the game his opponent shoots.

What the Official Count For the Heads of the Tickets Show.

Lisbon, Nov. 5.—[Special.]—The official count of the county was pushed through as rapidly as possible today, and this afternoon the votes given the first elector on each ticket was completed, with this result:

Republican 9,487, Democratic 6,524, Prohibition 243, Nationalist 38, National Democratic 28, Socialist 20.

IT COST THEM MONEY.

Local Bryanites Went Down In Their Pockets.

The campaign in this city cost the local Bryanites some money, and now that they know their efforts have come to naught they are disgusted. They sent out a great deal of literature, and their other expenses cost them more than some members of the party think they were justified in putting into the contest. The only consolation they have is in the fact that they got more than 500 votes in town, and some of them won money.

ONLY A CANARD.

There Is No Truth In This Democratic Story.

Some irresponsible Democrat of the city telephoned to Wellsville this afternoon that the Republicans here were weakening, and had postponed their justification out of fear of defeat. The story is a lie without trimmings, and every sane man in town knows the parade was deferred out of respect for the late James H. Goodwin.

THOUGHT IT WAS A COON.

But It Was Only a Poor Little Kitten.

Out on the hills above the china works last night a dog began to bay. He kept it up so long that the people were aroused, and a few confident Republicans felt sure the canine had treed a coon. They started for the top of the hill and found the dog at the foot of a tree. An agile member of the party hastened to climb the tree, while the others waited with bated breath. "I've got it," he shouted, and the next instant came sliding down the tree, but he had no coon. He carried a kitten.

A GLORIOUS RIDE.

Angus McBane Rode and George Boyd Pushed the Barrow.

Wheelbarrow bets are being paid much to the amusement of the crowds. Promptly at the appointed time George Boyd appeared in the Diamond last night with a wheelbarrow. Angus McBane climbed into the barrow, four Democrats with red fire took their places on each side, and the march around the block began. A great crowd cheered the procession until the debt was paid.

Frank Allison and Joe Winters settled their bet at Sebring's late this afternoon.

The Employees of the Sebring Plant Celebrated With a Dance.

The dance given at Brunt's yesterday afternoon and evening in honor of the election of McKinley by the employees of the Sebring Pottery company was a most enjoyable affair. None but employees of the plant were admitted, and the crowd was probably the best natured ever seen in the hall, as all enjoyed the occasion as best they could.

HASSEY WAS VIOLENT

While Being Taken to the Asylum at Newburg.

HE OWNED A RAILROAD COACH

Superintendent Riddle Had to Hire an Assistant—Jack Broke Windows In the Car and Scared the People A Damage Suit.

Lisbon, Nov. 5.—[Special.]—Jack Hasssey, the East Liverpool man who was taken to the infirmary a few weeks ago, is now in the Newburg asylum, but he was only taken there after a great deal of trouble.

Hasssey was often violent at the infirmary, and a place was found for him at Newburg as soon as possible. Superintendent Riddle started north with him yesterday, and Hasssey showed signs of uneasiness soon after they left Lisbon. Just before they reached Niles he owned the car. He was so wild that no one could control him, and in his fury he began breaking the windows. He shouted so that he terrified all the people in the car, and only after a desperate struggle did the superintendent finally regain control of him. Riddle succeeded in hiring a man to assist him, and at length landed Hasssey safely in Newburg.

Sheriff Gill was today notified by the authorities of Jefferson county that a suit for $10,000 had been entered against J. M. Kelly, of Steubenville, and W. E. Smith, of Wellsville, by C. Venuvohlt. The claim is for coal claimed to have been mined from the plaintiff's land without permission.

RESUMED OPERATIONS.

McKinley's Election Is Already Being Felt In Lisbon.

Lisbon, Nov. 5.—[Special.]—The plant of the United States Fireclay company began operations this morning after an idleness extending through six months. The condition of trade would not permit the management to pile up a big stock, and the works were sent down. The announcement was made at the office today that the plant will work full time during the winter. Over 200 people are given employment.

MAY PLAY AT TORONTO.

A Game Is Being Arranged With Steubenville.

Manager McSwiggen, of the Acme football team of Steubenville, this morning telephoned the manager of the Eclipse club that he had made arrangements to play the Eclipse at Toronto, Saturday. This was news to the home boys, but it is probable they will gather a team and play the game. They want to even matters with the Steubenville team.

HARD WORK

To Keep the Small Boy In School These Days.

Truant Officer Beardmore is making but little effort this week to keep track of the children who are not attending school, as the contract would be far too large for one man. After the excitement of the election has passed he will once more get down to business, and the small boy will be compelled to cease his celebrations and go to school.

THE GAS FLASHED.

And Landlord Lakel Has a Very Sore Face.

C. E. Lakel, proprietor of the Second street hotel, had his face burned by an explosion of gas this morning. He put a lighted match in a grate, and the explosion followed, a leak having allowed the gas to accumulate. Mr. Lakel's face was burned, but the wounds are not severe although his face is very sore.

HARD ON BUNTING.

The Rain Sadly Changed the Appearance of Flags.

The rain of today had a damaging effect on the bunting that decorates the majority of the prominent business houses and potteries. Instead of being composed of three beautiful colors, the rain has caused the colors to run until now it is hard to tell what color the bunting really is.

Nothing In It.

It was reported on the streets early yesterday morning that William Brunt, Sr., was dead. This morning rumor had it that he was seriously ill. There is absolutely no truth in either report, as Mr. Brunt is at present enjoying the best of health.

Settling a Bet.

Page Myler and George Cochran are to go hunting to settle an election bet. Now that McKinley is elected Myler will have all the game his opponent shoots.

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., THURSDAY, NOV. 5.

Who wants to be postmaster? Don't all speak at once.

It would be amusing to know how Mr. Badger, of New York, received the news.

If silver is not buried forever it has more lives than a cat and more gall than Ben Tillman.

In a year we will wonder why any man ever imagined a 50 cent dollar was better than one of 100 cents.

Let the whole city join in the jollification Saturday night. Too much cannot be done in honor of the great victory.

Mr. Potts didn't know there was a well developed brick under that plug hat when he kicked it for those 11 townships.

The patriot who would accept an office as numerous as the sands of the sea, and they do say a few Liverpool men are among them.

The Lisbon Patriot and the Salem Herald got their just and honest due. They played the game with loaded dice, and the people dropped on to their trick.

With McKinley in the White House, Forsaker in the senate and Taylor in the other branch of congress, this particular part of the Ohio valley should have very well these next four years.

Mr. BRYAN can now look up another position as advance agent, or perhaps it would be better to let him appear as the leading man in some dramatic production. He has had the required advertising.

The local silverites are happy. They think they are well rid of an annoying nightmare. They express the belief the vote for Bryan would have been little more than one-half what he obtained had he been supported by the local organ of Democracy.

DON'T EXPECT TOO MUCH.

The mere fact that Major McKinley will next year be president and a Republican congress will make laws allowing prosperity, must not be taken as any indication that golden dollars will roll through streets paved with blocks of precious metal. The people must do their part. The government can and will enact a protective tariff law upon the lines of Republican principle, but no nation can become prosperous without a certain amount of thrift. There must be earnest effort and honest toil. The advancement of any project was never gained without that work which is necessary for success. The government can do no more than lend its helping hand, the people must do the rest. There is every reason to believe that the coming years will be years of prosperity, years in which the country will know such prosperity as no nation ever knew before, but it cannot be reached by the simple enactment of a protective tariff law. We must all do our duty. The only difference is found in the fact that under Democracy there was no chance for success, under Republicanism there is every chance. Go to work, be up and doing, don't expect too much, and the next four years will be filled with gladness.

No Mumbo.

Foley's Honey and Tar does not claim to perform miracles. It does not claim to cure all cases of consumption or asthma. But it does claim to give comfort and relief in advanced stages of these diseases and to usually cure early stages. It is certainly worth trying by those afflicted or threatened with these dread diseases.

HOW THE SENATE STANDS.

A Belief That There is a Majority Against Silver.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—From returns thus far received, the next senate probably will stand as follows:
Republicans, 42; Democrats, 32; Independents and Populists, 11; doubtful, 5. Total, 90.

On the currency question the senate will likely have an anti-silver majority. The doubtful states are: Delaware, Kansas, Kentucky, North Carolina and South Dakota.

The Republicans would need 45 with the vice president to control the senate. The Republican senators who bolted the St. Louis ticket and platform are classed as Independents. They are Teller, Dubois, Mantle and Cannon. Another Utah senator, to be elected to succeed Brown, will no doubt be an Independent. Classified by states the senate will stand as follows:

CLAIMS FOR BRYAN.

Chairman Jones Will Not Admit McKinley's Election.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—Senator Jones has issued the following statement:
"I have counted from the beginning as the states upon which we relied for Mr. Bryan's election the southern states, with 156 votes, and the states west of the Missouri, with 61 votes, making a total of 217. I have hoped that we would carry Indiana, Michigan and Minnesota.

"I believe that we have carried every southern state except Maryland, and that we have carried all the western states heretofore counted on, which leaves us not counting Delaware, which, I think, we have carried, and which I have not heretofore calculated on, 209 votes. One vote we certainly have in Delaware and probably three. But counting only one vote, which we have beyond a doubt, it leaves necessary to a choice 14 votes.

Either Michigan or Indiana would give us those 14 votes. The reports received by us from both these states made encouragement and lead us to believe that while both states are close that we have the better chance to win each and that we may probably carry both.

"There can be scarcely a doubt of our getting Indiana. Under these circumstances, it seems to me that we are entirely justified in claiming the election of Mr. Bryan, which I do, and I believe that the temper of the people is such that they will not allow their choice to be defeated by tricks and fraud.

"The statements made in the city papers today that I have given up the contest and admitted that Mr. Bryan is defeated, indicate a deliberate purpose on the part of the papers as well as the Republican managers to create false impressions in the minds of the people and to lead them to believe that McKinley's election is accomplished and acquiesced in.

"I have not for a moment acquiesced in Mr. McKinley's election and will not until there is a material change from existing conditions.

"As I believe, Indiana and probably Michigan have voted for Mr. Bryan, and if either has he is elected."

BRYAN IS CALM.

He Is Not Yet Ready to Concede McKinley's Election.

LANCORN, Neb., Nov. 5.—Mr. Bryan is a comparatively early riser. He had had his breakfast and was receiving callers at 9 o'clock the day after the election. He was cheerful and buoyant.

ant, and clearly showed that he has a refreshing night's rest. Telegrams began to arrive early in the day, and while none of them made any positive claims as to the great result, they were of an encouraging character, giving the Democratic candidate far more ground for hope than did the public bulletins. Dispatches from Kentucky made positive claim for him for that state on the basis of big gains in the western section, while encouraging word was received from Indiana and Michigan.

Mr. Bryan commented upon these as a disinterested observer might have done, but he would have no comment to make until the result was absolutely known. Among the dispatches received were several from Senator Jones, national chairman, all of which were reassuring. One admirer, apparently accepting the reports of defeat as authentic, wired: "Congratulations on your magnificent fight. It was four years from Bull Run to Appomattox."

Mr. Bryan has given out the following in reply to numerous telegrams from all parts of the country. "The Democratic national committee claims enough states to give a majority in the electoral college, but the vote is very close in several of the states, and the result cannot be positively known until the entire vote is counted. In all close contests it is wise for both sides to watch the returns to guard against the possibility of mistake, intentional or unintentional."

Mr. Bryan dictated this statement to a typewriter, but when pressed for something more for the press declined to yield, saying that he could give no utterance to his opinion as to the result or outline his intentions until the outcome should be definitely known. In conversation with friends he freely discussed the probabilities, referring to the closeness of the vote in several of the states and comparing notes with them on the chances of Kentucky, West Virginia and other states of apparently narrow margins. He read all bulletins with interest, but in reply to questions said he was not allowing the uncertainty to cause the least degree of worry.

He was especially gratified at the result in Nebraska, and took occasion to earnestly congratulate the chairman of the various county and state committees located in Lincoln on their work in this city and throughout the state.

Yesterday afternoon Mr. Bryan attended the funeral of an old friend and he spent the evening with his callers. What purported to be telegrams received by Mr. Bryan, which Mr. Bryan afterwards said he had not authorized, were read in the hotel lobbies claiming the entire vote for Indiana and Minnesota, and a demonstration was arranged. Mr. Bryan quietly advised that it is suspended until the results should be more definite. Upon this hint the parade was abandoned before the Bryan residence was reached.

MAJORITY 295,550.

High Figures for McKinley in Pennsylvania Maintained.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 5.—Complete returns from all but a few of the 67 counties in Pennsylvania give McKinley a plurality of 295,550.

It is not believed that the official count will show much variation from these figures.

The Republicans will have an overwhelming majority in both branches of the state legislature, which next January will elect a successor to United States Senator J. Donald Cameron. The body will be made up largely of the friends of Senator Quay, and there seems little doubt that he will name the new senator. Philadelphia claims the place, and it is believed State Senator Boies Penrose will receive the support of Senator Quay. Former Postmaster General John Wanamaker, Governor Hastings and Peter A. B. Widener are also seeking the place, but at this time Penrose appears to be a winner.

PITTSBURG, Nov. 5.—The unofficial returns from the county, with eight districts to hear from, give McKinley a plurality of 48,799 over Bryan. The unreported districts will give the Republicans about 400 to 180 for the Democrats. It is figured that the scattering votes will not figure up enough to put McKinley's majority below 45,000.

CARRIED BY 56,000.

Later Returns Cut Down McKinley's Ohio Majority.

COLUMBUS, Nov. 5.—The Republican state committee puts McKinley's majority at 56,000.

Chairman McConville of the Democratic state committee claims McKinley's plurality will not reach 50,000. He claims the election of five Democratic congressmen and probably six. Chairman Kurtz of the Republican state committee says the Republicans elected 16 and the Democrats four congressmen, with the result in the Twelfth district between Watson and Lentz still in doubt.

Chairman Kurtz got complete returns from 86 of the 88 counties and compared them with last year's vote, when the Republican plurality was 92,000, after which he made the following statement: "Eighty-two counties show Republican gains of 12,450 and Democratic gains of 50,632 on the pluralities of 1895, net Democratic gain over 1895 of 38,182, leaving a Republican plurality this year of 54,440, with two counties, Morrow and Stark unreported. These two counties may reduce the plurality about 1,500, leaving McKinley's net plurality 52,940."

BRYAN MEN ENTHUSED.

Parades Over Claims of His Election in Different Numbers.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 5.—A local Bryan organization last night posted a telegram purporting to come from United States Senator Gorman, in Washington, stating that Bryan had 229 electoral votes, and that he was elected beyond a doubt. In less than half hour, Baltimore street, the principal avenue in the city, was crowded with a mob of howling, drunken men, shouting for Bryan, and impeding the progress of peaceable citizens, apparently defiant of the police. They insisted that this election was but a repetition of that of 1876, and charged that it was intended that Bryan should be cheated out of his rights. Parades were formed, and it was not until long after midnight that the excitement was allayed and the parades were induced to disperse.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—A disorderly crowd of 300 or 500 men last night marched through the streets shouting that Bryan was elected. They carried a transparency upon which was inscribed: "No '76 this year." "Indiana, Iowa and Kentucky is ours," and "Bryan is elected." In passing the newspaper offices and banks they hooted and made menacing demonstrations. Police detachments were ordered out in readiness for any disturbance of the peace.

DISTURBED MCKINLEY'S SLEEP.

Canton Wild Over the Election of Their Townsmen.

CANTON, O., Nov. 5.—The fever of excitement into which Canton was plunged election night was taken up again early the next morning. In fact, there was no intermission in the uninterrupted din of screeching steam whistles pulled open to their full capacity and tooting a savage chorus, bands and drum corps marching and countermarching, uniformed and ununiformed clubs, parading, artillery companies shaking the town with common salute, and the townspeople en masse joining in the demonstration of enthusiastic rejoicing over the result of the election.

Major McKinley was about the house by 9 o'clock in the morning, after three hours of naps broken by the demonstrations all around him. At 4 o'clock he had stood on the roof of the porch reviewing the Tippecanoe club. It was a stirring scene in the gray of the morning. Major McKinley took a final survey of the estimates up to 4:15. There had been marked fluctuation after midnight. But in any view of the situation, the feeling about the McKinley home was that the contest was over.

In order that the Major and Mrs. McKinley might have rest members of the local reception committee were early on hand to keep away visiting delegations until later in the day. A curious crowd filled the sidewalks and streets about the home, but no visitors were admitted. Telegrams by the hundreds had accumulated through the early morning, and were delivered in huge bunches. They were mainly congratulatory, with some additional advice on the situation.

REPUBLICAN FIGURES.

Claim of McKinley's Election Issued by Payne, Representing Hanna.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—Mr. Henry C. Payne of the Republican National committee, in charge of the headquarters in the absence of Chairman Hanna, issued the following this evening:

"Considering the wild rumors which are being circulated throughout the country, we deem it proper and advisable to state the result of the election, as indicated by the returns reported to the Associated Press and confirmed by telegrams to this office from the chairman of the several state committees and the members of the national committee in the several states. McKinley has carried beyond a doubt a sufficient number of states, so that his vote in the electoral college will be not less than 264.

"These states are the following, with the electoral vote of each state:
"California, 9; Connecticut, 6; Delaware, 3; Illinois, 24; Indiana, 15; Iowa, 13; Maine, 6; Maryland, 8; Massachusetts, 15; Michigan, 14; Minnesota, 9; New Hampshire, 4; New Jersey, 10; New York, 36; North Dakota, 3; Ohio, 23; Oregon, 4; Pennsylvania, 23; Rhode Island, 4; South Dakota, 4; Vermont, 4; West Virginia, 6; Wisconsin, 12. Total, 364.

"In addition to these, the states of Kentucky, North Carolina and Wyoming are in doubt, with the chances about even in the three states, although the Republicans of Kentucky claim that the state will give its electoral vote to McKinley by a majority of not less than 3,000.

It is proper to give the basis of the claims in the disputed states. Advancing this evening from California from the member of the national committee in San Francisco place the majority in that state at 8,000. This is confirmed by reports to The Associated Press. Telegrams from Indiana, from the chairman of the state Republican central committee and the member of the national committee, show that the state has given no less than 25,000 and probably over 30,000 for McKinley, and that the Republicans have elected all the members of congress and carried the legislature by a majority of 40 on joint ballot.

"Telegrams from North and South Dakota, which have been confirmed by the reports received by the Associated Press, place the majority in those states at a little more than 5,000 in North Dakota and about 3,500 in South Dakota. In North Dakota we have elected the entire state ticket and carried the legislature. In South Dakota the legislature is in doubt.

"There is no possible foundation for the report being circulated that Mr. Bryan has carried any of the states placed in the sure column for McKinley."

KENTUCKY IN DOUBT.

Republicans Claim the State by a Majority of 1,000.

LOUISVILLE, Nov. 5.—The following statement has been issued by Chairman Roberts of the state Republican executive committee:

"The Republican state committee claims Kentucky by 1,000 majority. It received returns from all but five counties in the mountain section.

"The Democrats will come to the Eleventh district with 13,000 majority in their favor. Returns from over half the counties of the district already assure considerably over 14,000 majority, upon which basis the committee is justified in claiming the state by approximately one thousand majority. The office count will be made Thursday and Friday."

The sudden transfer of Kentucky from the sure McKinley to the doubtful column was caused by reports from a tier of counties in the west end of the state.

South Dakota Very Close.

YANKTON, Nov. 5.—Out of 50,000 votes received at Republican headquarters the Republicans have a majority of 2,400, and Chairman Elliott is confident that this majority will be maintained.

A CASE OF TELEPATHY.

One Lady Appeared in a Vision at the Time of Her Death.

A gentleman took a house in Ireland for six months and was accompanied thither by his wife and daughters. The house was furnished and had plenty of bedrooms. Therefore it was decided not to use a certain large, long room with cupboards along one side (which had all been locked and sealed up with tape) in which things belonging to the owners of the house had been put away. One evening one of the daughters, going to her room, saw an old lady wrapped in a shawl walking along the passage in front of her. The old lady appeared to know her way and hurried on without hesitation into the unused room. The girl called her sister, and they followed the dame into the room. But all was silent. No one was there. The dust lying about showed no signs of footprints.

Shortly after the same young lady was reading on the hearth rug by firelight. Looking up, she beheld the old lady standing in the doorway watching her. Greatly frightened, she sprang up, and rushing down stairs, was found fainting at the drawing room door. At last the family returned to Dublin. One day when a friend was calling the curious incident which I have narrated was referred to. The young lady very unwillingly told her experiences. The visitor seemed much struck and asked for an accurate description of the old lady. "For," said she, "that house belonged to two old ladies, sisters, and when they left their house they went to reside at Geneva. One of them, answering exactly to the description you have given, died at the time you saw her appear."

WEST VIRGINIA REPUBLICAN.

The State Sure by 15,000. Also the Congressmen.

WHEELING, Nov. 5.—Incomplete returns continue to show Republican gains, and there is no reason to change the figures of 15,000 plurality. All four Republican candidates for congress are undoubtedly elected by increased majorities.

Atkinson (Rep.), for governor, and the entire Republican state ticket is elected and both branches of the legislature are Republican. The Gold Democrats generally voted the Republican ticket.

Delaware Sure for McKinley.

WILMINGTON, Del., Nov. 5.—McKinley's estimated plurality in Delaware is 2,600. Tunnell, Democrat, for governor has 2,800 plurality, and Handy, Democrat for congress, about the same. The legislature is in doubt. J. Edward Addicks carried Kent county, but both parties claim the Sussex legislative ticket. If Addicks has Sussex he will control the legislature and be elected to the United States senate.

Kansas for Bryan.

TOPEKA, Nov. 5.—Sufficient returns are in to show that Kansas cannot be counted for McKinley. The state's hardest fought political battle has resulted in a fusion victory for president and so close a vote for state candidates that only an official count can determine it.

There must be earnest effort and honest toil. The advancement of any project was never gained without that work which is necessary for success. The government can do no more than lend its helping hand, the people must do the rest. There is every reason to believe that the coming years will be years of prosperity, years in which the country will know such prosperity as no nation ever knew before, but it cannot be reached by the simple enactment of a protective tariff law. We must all do our duty. The only difference is found in the fact that under Democracy there was no chance for success, under Republicanism there is every chance. Go to work, be up and doing, don't expect too much, and the next four years will be filled with gladness.

HOW THE SENATE STANDS.

A Belief That There Is a Majority Against Silver.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—From returns thus far received, the next senate probably will stand as follows:
Republicans, 42; Democrats, 32; Independents and Populists, 11; doubtful, 5. Total, 90.
On the currency question the senate will likely have an anti-silver majority. The doubtful states are: Delaware, Kansas, Kentucky, North Carolina and South Dakota.
The Republicans would need 45 with the vice president to control the senate. The Republican senators who bolted the St. Louis ticket and platform are classed as Independents. They are Teller, Dubois, Mantle and Cannon. Another Utah senator, to be elected to succeed Brown, will no doubt be an Independent. Classified by states the senate will stand as follows:

CLAIMS FOR BRYAN.

Chairman Jones Will Not Admit McKinley's Election.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—Senator Jones has issued the following statement:

"I have counted from the beginning as the states upon which we relied for Mr. Bryan's election the southern states, with 156 votes, and the states west of the Missouri, with 61 votes, making a total of 217. I have hoped that we would carry Indiana, Michigan and Minnesota.

"I believe that we have carried every southern state except Maryland, and that we have carried all the western states heretofore counted on, which leaves us, not counting Delaware, which I think, we have carried, and which I have not heretofore calculated on, 209 votes. One vote we certainly have in Delaware and probably three. But counting only one vote, which we have beyond a doubt, it leaves necessary to a choice 14 votes.

Either Michigan or Indiana would give us those 14 votes. The reports received by us from both these states made encouragement and lead us to believe that while both states are close that we have the better chance to win each and that we may probably carry both.

"There can be scarcely a doubt of our getting Indiana. Under these circumstances, it seems to me that we are entirely justified in claiming the election of Mr. Bryan, which I do, and I believe that the temper of the people is such that they will not allow their choice to be defeated by tricks and fraud.

"The statements made in the city papers today that I have given up the contest and admitted that Mr. Bryan is defeated, indicate a deliberate purpose on the part of the papers as well as the Republican managers to create false impressions in the minds of the people and to lead them to believe that McKinley's election is accomplished and acquiesced in.

"I have not for a moment acquiesced in Mr. McKinley's election and will not until there is a material change from existing conditions.

"As I believe, Indiana, and probably Michigan have voted for Mr. Bryan, and if either has he is elected."

BRYAN IS CALM.

He Is Not Yet Ready to Concede McKinley's Election.

LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 5.—Mr. Bryan is a comparatively early riser. He had had his breakfast and was receiving callers at 9 o'clock the day after the election. He was cheerful and buoyant.

ant, and clearly showed that he has a refreshing night's rest. Telegrams began to arrive early in the day, and while none of them made any positive claims as to the result, they were of an encouraging character, giving the Democratic candidate far more ground for hope than did the public bulletins. Dispatches from Kentucky made positive claim for him for that state on the basis of big gains in the western section, while encouraging word was received from Indiana and Michigan.

Mr. Bryan commented upon these as a disinterested observer might have done, but made no general claims upon them. He said he would have commonly made until the result was absolutely known. Among the dispatches received were several from Senator Jones, national chairman, all of which were reassuring. One admirer, apparently accepting the reports of defeat as authentic, wired: "Congratulations on your magnificent fight. It was four years from Bull Run to Appomattox."

Mr. Bryan has given out the following reply to numerous telegrams from all parts of the country: "The Democratic national committee claims enough states to give a majority in the electoral college, but the vote is very close in several of the states, and the result cannot be positively known until the entire vote is counted. In all close contests it is wise for both sides to watch the returns to guard against the possibility of mistake, intentional or unintentional."

Mr. Bryan dictated this statement to a typewriter, but when pressed for something more for the press declined to yield, saying that he could give no utterance to his opinion as to the result or outline his intentions until the outcome should be definitely known. In conversation with friends he freely discussed the probabilities, referring to the closeness of the votes in several of the states and comparing notes with them on the chances of Kentucky, West Virginia and other states of apparently narrow margins. He read all bulletins with interest, but in reply to questions said he was not allowing the uncertainty to cause the least degree of worry.

He was especially gratified at the result in Nebraska, and took occasion to earnestly congratulate the chairman of the various county and state committees located in Lincoln on their work in this city and throughout the state.

Yesterday afternoon Mr. Bryan attended the funeral of an old friend and he spent the evening with his callers. What purported to be telegrams received by Mr. Bryan, which Mr. Bryan afterwards said he had not authorized, were read in the hotel lobbies claiming the entire south, the states west of the Missouri and also Indiana and Minnesota, and a demonstration was arranged. Mr. Bryan quietly advised that it be suspended until the results should be more definite. Upon this hint the parade was abandoned before the Bryan residence was reached.

MAJORITY 295,550.

High Figures for McKinley in Pennsylvania Maintained.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 5.—Complete returns from all but a few of the 67 counties in Pennsylvania give McKinley a plurality of 295,550.

It is not believed that the official count will show much variation from these figures.

The Republicans in both branches of the state legislature, which next January will elect a successor to United States Senator J. Donald Cameron. The body will be made up largely of the friends of Senator Quay, and there seems little doubt that he will name the new senator. Philadelphia claims the place, and it is believed State Senator Boies Penrose will receive the support of Senator Quay. Former Postmaster General John Wanamaker, Governor Hastings and Peter A. B. Widener are also seeking the place, but at this time Penrose appears to be a winner.

PITTSBURG, Nov. 5.—The unofficial returns from the county, with eight districts to hear from, give McKinley a plurality of 48,799 over Bryan. The unreported districts will give the Republicans about 400 to 180 for the Democrats. It is figured that the scattering votes will not figure up enough to put McKinley's majority below 45,000.

CARRIED BY 56,000.

Later Returns Cut Down McKinley's Ohio Majority.

COLUMBUS, Nov. 5.—The Republican state committee puts McKinley's majority at 56,000.

Chairman McConville of the Democratic state committee claims McKinley's plurality will not reach 50,000. He claims the election of five Democratic congressmen and probably six. Chairman Kurtz of the Republican state committee says the Republicans elected 16 and the Democrats four congressmen, with the result in the twelfth district between Watson and Leutz still in doubt.

Chairman Kurtz got complete returns from 86 of the 88 counties and compared them with last year's vote, when the Republican plurality was 92,000, after which he made the following statement: Eighty-two counties show Republican gains of 12,450 and Democratic gains of 50,632 on the pluralities of 1895, leaving a Republican plurality this year of 54,440, with two counties, Morrow and Stark unreported. These two counties may reduce the plurality about 1,500, leaving McKinley's net plurality 52,940.

BRYAN MEN ENTHUSED.

Parades Over Claims of His Election in Different Numbers.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 5.—A local Bryan organization last night posted a telegram purporting to come from United States Senator Gorman, in Washington, stating that Bryan had 229 electoral votes, and that he was elected beyond a doubt. In less than half hour, Baltimore street, the principal avenue in the city, was crowded with a mob of howling drunken men, shouting for Bryan, and impeding the progress of peaceable citizens, apparently defiant of the police. They insisted that this election was but a repetition of that of 1876, and charged that it was intended that Bryan should be cheated out of his rights. Parades were formed, and it was not until long after midnight that the excitement was allayed and no parades were induced to disperse.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—A orderly crowd of 300 or 500 men last night marched through the streets shouting that Bryan was elected. They carried a transparency upon which was inscribed: "No '76 this year." "Indiana, Iowa and Kentucky is ours," and "Bryan is elected." In passing the newspaper offices and banks they hooted and made menacing demonstrations. Police detachments were ordered out in readiness for any disturbance of the peace.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 5.—The streets were wild here last night with thousands of shouting Democrats marching behind a large banner on which was inscribed in large letters, "Bryan Elected. He Will Not Stand 1876 Again."

DISTURBED MCKINLEY'S SLEEP.

Canton Wild Over the Election of Their Townsman.

CANTON, O., Nov. 5.—The fever of excitement into which Canton was plunged election night was taken up again early the next morning. In fact, there was no intermission in the uninterrupted din of screeching steam whistles pulled open to their full capacity and tooting a savage chorus, bands and drum corps marching and countermarching, uniformed and ununiformed clubs parading, artillery companies shaking the town with common salute, and the townspeople en masse joining in the demonstration of enthusiastic rejoicing over the result of the election.

Major McKinley was about the house by 9 o'clock in the morning, after three hours of naps broken by the demonstrations all around him. At 4 o'clock he had stood on the roof of the porch reviewing the Tippecanoe club. It was a stirring scene in the gray of the morning. Major McKinley took a final survey of the estimates up to 4:15. There had been marked fluctuation after midnight. But in any view of the situation, the feeling about the McKinley home was that the contest was over.

In order that the Major and Mrs. McKinley might have rest members of the local reception committee were early on hand to keep away visiting delegations until later in the day. A curious crowd filled the sidewalks and streets about the home, but no visitors were admitted. Telegrams by the hundreds had accumulated through the early morning, and were delivered in huge bunches. They were mainly congratulatory, with some additional advice on the situation.

REPUBLICAN FIGURES.

Claim of McKinley's Election Issued by Payne, Representing Hanna.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—Mr. Henry C. Payne of the Republican national committee, in charge of the headquarters in the absence of Chairman Hanna, issued the following this evening:

"Considering the wild rumors which are being circulated throughout the country, we deem it proper and advisable to state the result of the election, as indicated by the returns reported to the Associated Press and confirmed by telegrams to this office from the chairman of the several state committees and the members of the national committee in the several states. McKinley has carried beyond a doubt a sufficient number of states, so that his vote in the electoral college will be not less than 264.

These states are the following, with the electoral vote of each state:

"California, 9; Connecticut, 6; Delaware, 3; Illinois, 24; Indiana, 15; Iowa, 13; Maine, 6; Maryland, 10; Massachusetts, 15; Michigan, 14; Minnesota, 9; New Hampshire, 4; New Jersey, 10; New York, 36; North Dakota, 3; Ohio, 23; Oregon, 4; Pennsylvania, 32; Rhode Island, 4; South Dakota, 4; Vermont, 4; West Virginia, 6; Wisconsin, 12. Total, 264.

"In addition to these, the states of Kentucky, North Carolina and Wyoming are in doubt, with the chances about even in the three states, although the Republicans of Kentucky claim that the state will give its electoral vote to McKinley by a majority of not less than 3,000.

"It is proper to give the basis of the claims in the disputed states. Advice last evening from California from the member of the national committee in that state at 8,000. This is confirmed by reports to The Associated Press. Telegrams from Indiana, from the chairman of the state Republican central committee and the member of the national committee, show that the state has given no less than 25,000 and probably over 30,000 for McKinley, and that the Republicans have elected all the members of congress and carried the legislature by a majority of 40 on joint ballot.

"Telegrams from North and South Dakota, which have been confirmed by the reports received by the Associated Press, place the majority in those states at a little more than 5,000 in North Dakota and about 3,500 in South Dakota. In North Dakota we have elected the entire state ticket and carried the legislature. In South Dakota the legislature is in doubt.

"There is no possible foundation for the report being circulated that Mr. Bryan has carried any of the states placed in the sure column for McKinley."

KENTUCKY IN DOUBT.

Republicans Claim the State by a Majority of 1,000.

LOUISVILLE, Nov. 5.—The following statement has been issued by Chairman Roberts of the state Republican executive committee:

"The Republican state committee claims Kentucky by 1,000 majority. It received returns from all but five counties in the mountain section. "The Democrats will come to the Eleventh district with 13,600 majority in their favor. Returns from over half the counties of the district already assure considerably over 14,000 majority, upon which basis the committee is justified in claiming the state by approximately one thousand majority. The office count will be made Thursday and Friday.

The sudden transfer of Kentucky from the sure McKinley to the doubtful column was caused by reports from a tier of counties in the west end of the state.

South Dakota Very Close.

YANKTON, Nov. 5.—Out of 50,000 votes received at Republican headquarters the Republicans have a majority of 2,400, and Chairman Elliott is confident that this majority will be maintained.

A CASE OF TELEPATHY.

One Lady Appeared in a Vision at the Time of Her Death.

A gentleman took a house in Ireland for six months and was accompanied thither by his wife and daughters. The house was furnished and had plenty of bedrooms. Therefore it was decided not to use a certain large, long room with cupboards along one side (which had all been locked and sealed up with tape) in which things belonging to the owners of the house had been put away. One evening one of the daughters, going to her room, saw an old lady wrapped in a shawl walking along the passage in front of her. The old lady appeared to know her way and hurried on without hesitation into the unused room. The girl called her sister, and they followed the dame into the room. But all was silent. No one was there. The dust lying about showed no signs of footprints.

Shortly after the same young lady was reading on the hearth rug by firelight. Looking up, she beheld the old lady standing in the doorway watching her. Greatly frightened, she sprang up, and, rushing down stairs, was found fainting at the drawing room door. At last the family returned to Dublin. One day when a friend was calling the curious incident which I have narrated was referred to. The young lady very unwillingly told her experiences. The visitor seemed much struck and asked for an accurate description of the old lady. "For," said she, "that house belonged to two old ladies, sisters, and when they let their house they went to reside at Geneva. One of them, answering exactly to the description you have given, died at the time you saw her appear."

WEST VIRGINIA REPUBLICAN.

The State Sure by 15,000, Also the Congressmen.

WHEELING, Nov. 5.—Incomplete returns continue to show Republican gains, and there is no reason to change the figures of 15,000 plurality. All four Republican candidates for congress are undoubtedly elected by increased majorities.

Atkinson (Rep.), for governor, and the entire Republican state ticket is elected and both branches of the legislature are Republican. The Gold Democrats generally voted the Republican ticket.

Delaware Sure for McKinley.

WILMINGTON, Del., Nov. 5.—McKinley's estimated plurality in Delaware is 2,600. Tunnell, Democrat, for governor has 2,800 plurality, and Handy, Democrat for congress, about the same. The legislature is in doubt. J. Edward Addicks carried Kent county, but both parties claim the Sussex legislative ticket. If Addicks has Sussex he will control the legislature and be elected to the United States senate.

Kansas for Bryan.

TOPEKA, Nov. 5.—Sufficient returns are in to show that Kansas cannot be counted for McKinley. The state's hardest fought political battle has resulted in a fusion victory for president and so close a vote for state candidates that only an official count can determine it.

M'KINLEY WON.

His Election Declared to Be Beyond Doubt.

THE MAJORITY NOT SO BIG.

The Majority For McKimley in Ohio and Pennsylvania—How the Senate Will Stand—Claims Made by Republicans and Democrats Regarding the Next House—France Ready to Take the Initiative For International Bimetallism. Enthusiasm at Canton—An Ovation to Hanna—General Election News.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—The returns from the entire country although incomplete in some states, are of a nature to insure the election of McKimley. A sufficient number of states has been declared for the Republican party to make certain 263 votes in the electoral college for its leader. The states whose votes are secured for him are as follows: Electoral votes, California 9, Connecticut 6, Delaware 3, Illinois 24, Indiana 15, Iowa 13, Maine 6, Maryland 6, Massachusetts 15, Michigan 14, Minnesota 9, New Hampshire 4, New Jersey 10, New York 36, North Dakota 3, Ohio 23, Oregon 3, Pennsylvania 23, Rhode Island 4, South Dakota 4, Vermont 4, West Virginia 6, Wisconsin 12. Total 263.

The returns show some interesting features, and in some respects have been a surprise to the leaders of both political parties. The New England states have, as was expected, given heavy pluralities for McKimley, without exceptions. The Republican ticket was successful in Massachusetts beyond what was claimed for it by the most enthusiastic prophet of Republican success.

New York and Pennsylvania vie with each other for the largest plurality, and the figures at hand do not indicate which one of them has surpassed the other. Each state has given the Republican candidate of between 275,000 and 300,000 votes.

To these states Illinois is a good third in its plurality for the winning candidate. If the percentage of gain over the presidential election of 1892 that has been shown continues to the end, it will give a plurality of not far from 175,000. In the gubernatorial race, Altgeld has been badly defeated, but is not so far behind as was expected, and is probably about 10,000 ahead of the Democratic national ticket. There has been evidently a large vote cast throughout the state for McKimley and Altgeld.

In Indiana, if any of the rules for estimating the vote of a state, which are in use at the present election held, are still to be relied upon, there is no justification for the Democratic claims of having carried the state. If the ratio of Republican gain continues to the end of the count McKimley will have approximately 20,000 plurality in the state.

In Iowa, as far as can be seen from the returns at present the Republican plurality has been very large—not far away from 75,000.

Ohio which has all along been claimed by Chairman Jones as a state in which the Republican candidate was very close, has given the Republican candidate an overwhelming plurality, 56,000.

In Michigan the election has resulted in a very heavily reduced vote for the Republican ticket. The free silver voters of Detroit concede the state to McKimley by 35,000. The last previous vote in the state was in 1895, when the Republican candidate for governor, the late Governor Black, had a plurality of 11,487 over McGrath, his Democratic rival.

West Virginia is confidently claimed by the Republicans, and the chairman of the Democratic state central committee conceded the state to McKimley. It is about 15,000 Republican.

Tennessee presents some of the interesting features of the campaign. McKimley, the gold Democratic candidate, is running neck and neck with his opponent, and the official result will be necessary to decide between them. The state at large is claimed by both parties, and because of the length of the ticket the returns are coming in so slow that neither side feels confident in claiming the electoral vote with any confidence.

North Carolina is claimed by both parties, but, as in Tennessee, the returns are very slow and no definite conclusion is possible at present. South Carolina, Georgia, Mississippi, Alabama and Louisiana are all for Bryan, and the normal Democratic majority about the Virginia electors will, without question, be for Bryan, but they have been elected by a heavily reduced vote. The Republicans have abandoned all hope of Texas and the state is conceded to Bryan. The election between the Populists and the Republicans in this state did not move. Nebraska has gone for Bryan, and the Republican ticket is practically nothing. The returns show Democratic gains in some districts, and these are offset by Republican gains in other parts of the state. Both parties claim the state, but the few scattering returns that are in so far as of so indefinite as to make any claim, no matter whom made, of a very uncertain character.

Wisconsin is sure of the Republican gain by an enormous plurality. McKimley, which was regarded as doubtful by both parties, has surprised everybody by the size of its Republican plurality, and McKimley will have approximately 33,000 to 40,000 more votes in the state than Bryan. Governor Clough, whose election was considered doubtful, is certainly elected.

The latest information from the two Dakotas shows that North Dakota is very sure for McKimley and the probability that South Dakota will be found in the same column although the result is close.

The Republicans claim Wyoming and Washington, but the probabilities seem against them in both states. Oregon has gone for McKimley, and Colorado, as was expected, has given Bryan a heavy plurality, and Adams has without doubt been elected governor. The interest in the election in the state centered in the state tickets, of which there were several, representing a great variety of interests.

Idaho, Montana, Utah and Nevada have all gone for Bryan by heavy majorities.

California has, on the strength of the returns at hand, undoubtedly gone for McKimley, the city of San Francisco giving him a plurality of 6,947. One-half of the outside precincts show a Democratic gain of 41 votes, showing that the Democratic reliance upon the heavy support of the rural districts was not entirely warranted.

Delaware, where the Republican party has been rent in twain because of the Addicks-Higgins fight, has kept in the Republican column. The vote for the Republican electors in this state has been usually large, showing that the factional dispute did not extend in any great measure to the national ticket.

The vote of Maryland has shown an interesting reversal from that of the last presidential election. Cleveland carried the state by a plurality of 21,139, and this year McKimley has a plurality of slightly over 21,000 in the city of Baltimore alone.

BIMETALLISM SURE.

France Ready to Take the Initiative, Foreign Election Opinions.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—Your representative has had an interview on the election with M. Ribot, at Paris, the former premier of France, who recently returned from a visit to the United States and Canada. M. Ribot said: "The election of McKimley does not surprise me any more than the majority he obtained. When I left America at the end of September it was apparent to me that Bryan, in spite of his tremendous effort, would not succeed. Yesterday marks an important date in the history of the parties in the United States. The energy displayed by both sides in the campaign, and the anxiety with which the result was awaited, show clearly that the stake at issue in the battle was not simply a question of gold or silver."

If Bryan had triumphed over the Republicans even with the influence of former Democratic chiefs, with President Cleveland at their head, his success would have had, both from a political and a social point of view, the gravest and perhaps the most redoubtable consequences.

"Still, to us Europeans the election of McKimley is not altogether agreeable, for without doubt we shall have to wait before long by a return to an exaggerated protective policy in the United States. In regard to monetary questions, yesterday's election shows in a manner most evident that the solution to be derived is through international agreement. I have several reasons for thinking that the French government is not altogether uninterested in this question, and now that the presidential crisis is ended we may without doubt expect some initiative on the part of France towards the other powers."

M. Doumer, who was minister of finance in France in the late radical ministry, said in part: "It is without enthusiasm that the American tariff is received here. In Europe it is generally apprehended that McKimley's presidency will be unfavorable to the development of commercial relations between the new and old worlds. On the other hand the success of Bryan would have had such economic consequences, and the perturbation caused in the great financial markets of the world might have been so great that few were those who could have desired his election."

The result of the election in the United States was received throughout Germany with great satisfaction, except by the bimetallists. A high official of the foreign office said: "The government is pleased with the result and congratulates the American people on ridding themselves for good of an incubus and danger of financial upheaval which would follow the unsettling of sound currency. All civilized nations will profit by the outcome of the elections, and the prospect of Germany, owing to its intimate, important, commercial and economic relations with the United States."

However, Germans express a fear of McKimley's high tariff tendencies. The election of Major McKimley to the presidency of the United States had a marked effect upon the securities in England.

According to the general impression the election will result in the rapid diminution of the gold withdrawals for the United States, and there is no doubt that Major McKimley's victory favorably effected the stock exchange throughout.

A leading English stock broker, in an interview, said: "McKimley's election has boomed the whole market. Large buying orders from New York were sent after the result of the election was known in the United States and started the market. This was followed by English buying of American and English stocks."

The Star remarks: "We, in England, have great reason to rejoice at the overwhelming defeat of the attack upon the gold standard. Great evils may be in store, but no high tariff can inflict a title of the ruin which Bryan's victory would have entailed. There will be no immediate improvement. There will be the defeat of Bryan, will restore confidence in the financial honesty and stability of the United States."

THE NEXT HOUSE.

Claims Put Forth by Republican and Democratic Chairmen.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—At Republican and Democratic congressional headquarters the chairmen have been busy in the complexion of the new House.

Chairman Babcock says that he has complete reports from 198 congressional districts which have elected Republicans. There are 135 districts that have elected Democrats or Populists, and 23 districts in which the returns are incomplete. These may be all classed as doubtful, with the prospect that the Republicans will secure at least one-half of them, which would make a total Republican membership in the Fifty-fifth congress of 207. It is safe to say that under no circumstances will the Republican membership fall below 200.

THANKSGIVING DAY.

The President Calls on the People to Observe the Day.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—The president has issued the following Thanksgiving proclamation:

"The people of the United States should never be unmindful of the gratitude they owe the God of nations for His watchful care, which has shielded them from dire disaster and pointed out to them the way of peace and happiness. Nor should they ever refuse to acknowledge, with contrite hearts, their proneness to turn away from God's teachings and to follow with sinful pride after their own devices."

"To the end that these thoughts may be quickened, it is fitting that on a day especially appointed we should join together in approaching the throne of grace with praise and supplication."

"Therefore I, Grover Cleveland, president of the United States, do hereby designate and set apart Thursday, the 28th day of the present month of November, to be kept and observed as a day of thanksgiving and prayer throughout our land."

"On that day let all our people forego their usual work and occupation, and, assembled in their accustomed places of worship, let them with one accord render thanks to the Ruler of the Universe for our preservation as a nation and our deliverance from every threatened danger; for the peace that has dwelt within our boundaries; for our defense against disease and pestilence during the year that has passed; for the plenteous rewards that have followed the labors of our husbandmen, and for all the other blessings that have been vouchsafed to us."

"And let us, through the mediation of Him who has taught us how to pray, implore the forgiveness of our sins and a continuation of heavenly favor."

"Let us not forget on this day of thanksgiving the poor and needy, and by deeds of charity let our offerings of praise be made more acceptable in the sight of the Lord."

"Witness my hand and the seal of the United States, which I have caused to be hereto affixed."

"Done at the city of Washington this 4th day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and ninety-six, and of the independence of the United States of America the one hundred and twenty-first."

M'KINLEY WON.

His Election Declared to Be Beyond Doubt.

THE MAJORITY NOT SO BIG.

Later Returns Out Down the Earlier Estimates on the Result.

CHAIRMAN JONES STILL HOPES.

He Refuses to Concede the Election of the Man From Ohio—Issues a Statement Giving His Reasons—Payne Also Puts Out a Statement Declaring That McKinley Is Surely Elected—The Associated Press Says the Major Is the Next President—Bryan Will Not Say He Is Defeated—Enthusiastic Bryanites in Different Cities Hurrahed on Hearing Claims That Bryan Had Been Elected. The Majorities For McKinley in Ohio and Pennsylvania—How the Senate Will Stand—Claims Made by Republicans and Democrats Regarding the Next House—France Ready to Take the Initiative For International Bimetallism. Enthusiasm at Canton—An Ovation to Hanna—General Election News.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—The returns from the entire country although incomplete in some states, are of a nature to insure the election of McKinley. A sufficient number of states has been declared for the Republican party to make certain 263 votes in the electoral college for its leader. The states whose votes are secured for him are as follows: Electoral votes, California 9, Connecticut 6, Delaware 3, Illinois 24, Indiana 15, Iowa 13, Maine 6, Maryland 13, Massachusetts 15, Michigan 14, Minnesota 9, New Hampshire 4, New Jersey 10, New York 36, North Dakota 3, Ohio 23, Oregon 3, Pennsylvania 32, Rhode Island 4, South Dakota 4, Vermont 4, West Virginia 6, Wisconsin 12. Total 263.

The returns show some interesting features, and in some respects have been a surprise to the leaders of both political parties. The New England states have, as was expected, given heavy pluralities for McKinley, without exception. The Republican ticket was successful in Massachusetts beyond what was claimed for it by the most enthusiastic prophet of Republican success.

New York and Pennsylvania vie with each other for the largest plurality, and the figures at hand do not indicate which one of them has surpassed the other. Each state has given the Republican candidate of between 275,000 and 280,000.

To these states Illinois is a good third in its plurality for the winning candidate. If the percentage of gain over the presidential election of 1892 that has so far been shown continues to the end, it will give a plurality of not far from 275,000. In the gubernatorial race Altgeld has been badly defeated, but is not carried so deep, and is probably about 90,000 ahead of the Democratic national ticket. There has been evidently a large vote cast throughout the state for McKinley and Altgeld.

In Indiana, if any of the rules for estimating the vote of a state, which previous to the present election held good, are still to be relied upon, there is no justification for the Democratic claims of having carried the state. If the ratio of Republican gain continues to the end of the count McKinley will be approximately 20,000 plurality in the state.

In Iowa, as far as can be seen from the returns at present, the Republican plurality has been very large—not far away from 75,000.

Ohio which has all along been claimed by Chairman Jones as a state in which Bryan would push McKinley very close, has given the Republican candidate an overwhelming plurality, 56,000.

In Michigan the election has resulted in a very heavily reduced vote for the Republican ticket. The free silver voters of Detroit conceded the state to McKinley by 25,000. The last previous vote in the state was in 1895, when Bryan, the Republican candidate for justice of the supreme court, had a plurality of 71,487 over McGrath, his Democratic rival.

West Virginia is confidently claimed by the Republicans, and the chairman of the Democratic state central committee conceded the state to McKinley. It is about 10,000 Republican.

Tennessee presents some of the interesting features of the campaign. Patterson, the gold Democratic candidate for congress in the city of Memphis, is running neck and neck with his opponent, and the official count will be necessary to decide between them. The state at large is being elected by both parties, and because of the length of the ticket the returns are coming in so slow that neither side feels any confidence.

North Carolina is claimed by both parties, but, as in Tennessee, the returns are very slow and no definite count is possible at present. South Carolina, Georgia, Mississippi, Alabama and Louisiana are all for Bryan, but the normal Democratic majorities. The Virginia electors will, without question, be for Bryan, but they are elected by a heavily reduced Democratic vote. The Republicans have abandoned all hope of Texas and the state is conceded to McKinley. The division between the Populists and the Republicans in this state did not prove serious. Nebraska has gone for Bryan, but the Republican electors are not yet counted. Kansas has as yet said practically nothing. The returns show Democratic gains in some districts, and these are offset by Republican gains in other parts of the state. Both parties claim to be in so far as of so indefinite a nature as to make any claim, no matter how made, of a very uncertain character.

Wisconsin is sure of the Republican claim by an enormous plurality. Minnesota which was regarded as doubtful by both parties, has surprised everybody by the size of its Republican plurality, and McKinley will have approximately 33,000 to 40,000 more votes in the state than Bryan. Governor Clough, whose election was considered doubtful, is certainly elected.

The latest information from the two Dakotas shows that North Dakota is very sure for McKinley and the probability that South Dakota will be found in the same column although the result is close.

The Republicans claim Wyoming and Washington, but the probabilities seem against them in both states. Oregon has gone for McKinley, and Colorado, as was expected, has given Bryan a heavy plurality, and Adams has without doubt been elected governor. The interest in the election in the state centered in the state tickets, of which there were several, representing a great variety of interests.

Idaho, Montana, Utah and Nevada have all gone for Bryan by heavy majorities.

California has, on the strength of the returns at hand, undoubtedly gone for McKinley, the city of San Francisco giving him a plurality of 6,947. One-half of the outside precincts show a Democratic gain of 41 votes, showing that the Democratic reliance upon the heavy support of the rural districts was not entirely warranted.

Delaware, where the Republican party has been in twain because of the Addicks-Higgins fight, has kept in the Republican column. The vote for the Republican electors in this state has been usually large, showing that the factional dispute did not extend in any great measure to the national ticket.

The vote of Maryland has shown an interesting reversal from that of the last presidential election. Cleveland carried the state by a plurality of 21,130, and this year McKinley has a plurality of slightly over 21,000 in the city of Baltimore alone.

BIMETALLISM SURE.

France Ready to Take the Initiative. Foreign Election Opinions.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—Your representative has had an interview on the election with M. Ribot, at Paris, the former premier of France, who recently returned from a visit to the United States and Canada. M. Ribot said: "The election of McKinley does not surprise me any more than the majority he obtained. When I left America at the end of September it was apparent to me that Bryan, in spite of his tremendous effort, would not succeed. Yesterday marks an important date in the history of the parties in the United States. The energy displayed by both sides in the campaign, and the anxiety with which the result was awaited, show clearly that the stake at issue in the battle was not simply a question of gold or silver. If Bryan had triumphed over the Republicans even with the influence of former Democratic chiefs, with President Cleveland at their head, his success would have had, both from a political and a social point of view, the gravest and perhaps the most doubtful consequences."

"Still, to us Europeans the election of McKinley is not altogether agreeable, for without doubt we shall have to suffer before long by a return to an exaggerated protective policy in the United States. In regard to monetary questions, yesterday's election shows in a manner most evident that the solution to be derived is through international agreement. I have several reasons for thinking that the French government is not altogether uninterested in this question, and now that the presidential crisis is ended we may without doubt expect some initiative on the part of France towards the other powers."

M. Doumer, who was minister of finance in France in the late radical ministry, said in part: "It is without enthusiasm that the election of the promoter of the American customs tariff is received here. In Europe it is generally apprehended that McKinley's presidency will be unfavorable to the development of commercial relations between the new and old worlds. On the other hand the success of Bryan would have had such economic consequences and the perturbation caused in the great financial markets of the world might have been so great that few were those who could have desired his election."

The result of the election in the United States was received throughout Germany with great satisfaction, except by the internationalists. A high official of the foreign office said: "The government is pleased with the result and congratulates the American people on riding themselves for good of an incubus and danger of financial upheaval which would follow the unsettling of sound currency. All civilized nations will profit by the outcome of the elections, and especially Germany, owing to the intimate, important, commercial and economic relations with the United States."

However, Germans express a fear of Major McKinley's high tariff tendencies.

The election of Major McKinley to the presidency of the United States had a marked effect upon the securities in England.

According to the general impression the election will result in the rapid diminution of the gold withdrawals from the United States, and there is no doubt that Major McKinley's victory favorably effected the stock exchange through out.

A leading English stock broker, in an interview, said: "McKinley's election has boomed the whole market. Large buying orders from New York were sent after the result of the election was known in the United States and started the market. This was followed by English buying of American and English stocks."

The Star remarks: "We, in England, have great reason to rejoice at the overwhelming defeat of the attack upon the gold standard. Great evils may be in store, but no high tariff can inflict a title of the ruin which Bryan's victory would have entailed. There will be an immediate improvement of business for the election of McKinley, or, rather, the defeat of Bryan, will restore confidence in the financial honesty and stability of the United States."

THE NEXT HOUSE.

Claims Put Forth by Republican and Democratic Congressmen.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—At Republican and Democratic congressional headquarters the chairman have been fighting on the complexion of the next house.

Chairman Babcock says that he has complete reports from 198 congressional districts which have elected Republicans. There are 135 districts that have elected Democrats or Populists, and 25 districts in which the returns are incomplete. These may be all classed as doubtful, with the prospect that the Republicans will secure at least one-half of them, which would make a total Republican membership in the Fifty-fifth congress of 207. It is safe to say that under no circumstances will the Republican membership fall below 200.

Strange Beginning of a Friendship.

I remember the anecdote my stepfather, Count d'Aure, who entered La Fliche before the regulation age of 8, used to tell me. It was the first time he had left his mother, and he was somewhat bewildered by the roughness of his comrades, who affected the airs of old troopers. To make sure that he was not a milkop, one of them, a veteran of 12, made him lay his hand flat on the ground, stepped on it and crushed one of his fingers. This tormentor was the future General Baraguay d'Hilliers. The victim, who nearly fainted, bore it bravely, however. "And this was the beginning," my stepfather used to add half a century later, when showing his deformed finger, "of a friendship that lasted all our lives." This happened shortly after the first empire, when Roman virtues were emulated, but one must not infer from this isolated fact that stoicism flourishes vigorously in the French educational system.—Th. Bentzon in Century.

THE EDELWEISS MYTH.

It Is Not a Rare Plant, Nor Does It Grow at Very Great Heights.

It is commonly reported and is no less commonly believed by the inexperienced tourist that edelweiss is a plant which only grows in the most dangerous and inaccessible situations. Of course with it, as with any other Alpine plant, this may now and then happen. But as a rule it is found on rough and rather stony slopes of grass, the ordinary pasture of sheep and goats, at heights ranging from about 5,000 to 8,000 feet above the sea level. It is not often met with below the former limit and seldom above the latter. Once it could be plucked—probably it has now been exterminated—by the side of a path a few hundred feet above Zermatt and within half an hour of the hotels. It was abundant, and no doubt still is, all about the little inn at the Tosa falls, and it may be picked in handfuls within a couple of hours' easy walk from the baths of San Bernardino. That it is a great rarity is also an article of faith, but this is another myth. It is doubtless a plant local rather than universal in the Alps, but there are few districts where it does not occur, often abundantly. What has caused it to be so prized is difficult to understand. It is an everlasting, but that is almost equivalent to saying that it has no great beauty. The plant attains a height of about four inches, having one or two flowers on a stem. These are star shaped, a few pointed rays down covered, as if they were cut out of pale gray velvet, surrounding two or three yellowish tufts. The dry stem and narrow leaves are similarly covered. Its scientific name is Gnaphalium leontopodium, and the genus to which it belongs has three or four representatives in the Alps, one of them, G. dioicum, being also abundant on dry moors in Britain. It is, in short, a flower quaint rather than beautiful.

The edelweiss is an extremely easy plant to raise from seed and should be treated as an annual. The seed can be obtained readily for a few pence from any respectable nurseryman. It is, however, a very difficult plant to transplant with any success. Sometimes the edelweiss, when torn from its native mountain and set out in a garden, will have sufficient life in it to flower and then pine away and die. This is the almost invariable result of these attempted transplantations.

It may be added that edelweiss, when grown on anything like the sea level, or, in fact, anywhere away from home, entirely loses its distinctive character and becomes worthless as a garden plant. Perhaps these remarks will save some tourists' sponge bags from being filled, which, if they do not become heated and die on the journey, will barely linger long enough to enable the proud owner to point to them as evidence that he has actually been to Switzerland.—London Standard.

The Prolonged Bath.

Modern Medicine says that a patient in the St. Louis hospital was recently kept immersed in a bathtub for six weeks for the cure of a large sloughing abscess, a current of water being constantly passed through the tub. The writer has, within the last 20 years, treated many cases of gangrene, crushed limbs, sloughing sores, etc., by this method and has found better results than by any other. Its success is due to the aseptics secured by the constant immersion. The presence of a large quantity of water is not favorable to the development of pus-forming germs, so that suppuration is lessened and at the same time the poisons resulting from the action of the disease germs are washed away. These poisons, when left in contact with the tissues, paralyze the living cells and destroy them, thus hindering the reparative efforts, but by the constant cleansing effected by the contact of water kept pure by frequent renewal the tissues are protected from the toxic influence of these poisons, and healthy repair is thus promoted.

While in Vienna some 12 years ago the writer found patients living in tubs of water who had been immersed for periods varying from six months to a year or more. The cells of the body are accustomed to contact with moisture. In this respect they may even be compared to aquatic animals. The blood cells are carried by a current of watery fluid, and the tissue cells are all constantly bathed in this fluid, so that the contact of water with the living tissues is a condition closely analogous to that which is naturally maintained within the body.—New York Ledger.

EMPEROR OF ELBA.

HOW NAPOLEON CONDUCTED HIMSELF DURING EXILE.

The Powers Which Swayed the Larger World Shown to Good Advantage in His Pygmy Kingdom—The Darker Side of a Brilliant Career.

Elba was an island divided against itself, there being both imperialists and royalists among its inhabitants and a considerable party which desired independence. By representing that Napoleon had brought with him fabulous sums the Austrian and English commissioners easily won the Elbans to a fervor of loyalty for their new emperor. Before nightfall of the 4th of the court was established, and the new administration began its labors. Having mastered the resources and needs of his pygmy realm, the emperor began to deploy all his powers, mending the highways, fortifying the strategic points and creating about the nucleus of 400 guards which were sent from Fontainebleau an efficient little army of 1,600 men. His expenses were regulated to the minutest detail both at home and abroad. The salt works and iron mines, which were the bulwarks of Elban prosperity, began at once to increase their output, and taxation was regulated with scrupulous nicety. By that superlative virtue of the French burgher, good management, the island was made almost independent of the remnants of the Tuilleries treasure (about 5,000,000 francs) which Napoleon had brought from France. The same powers which had swayed a world operated with equal success in a sphere almost microscopic by comparison.

Before long the Princess Borghese, separated soon after her marriage from her second husband and banished since 1810 from Paris for impertinent conduct to the empress, came, according to promise, to be her brother's companion, and Madame Mere, though distant in prosperity, came likewise to soothe her son in adversity. The intercepted letters of the former prove her to have been at least as loose in her life at Elba as ever before, but they do not afford a sufficient basis for the scandals concerning her relations with Napoleon which were founded upon them and industriously circulated at the court of Louis XVIII. The shameful charge has no adequate foundation of any sort.

Napoleon's economies were rendered not merely expedient, but imperative by the fact that none of the money from France was forthcoming which had been promised in his treaty with the powers. After a short stay Koller frankly stated that, in his opinion, it would never be paid and departed. The island swarmed with Bourbon spies, and the only conversation in which Napoleon could indulge himself unguardedly was with Sir Neil Campbell, the English representative, or with the titled English gentlemen who gratified their curiosity by visiting him. During the summer heats, when the court was encamped on the heights at Marciana for refreshment, there appeared a mysterious lady with her child. Both were well received and kindly treated, but they withdrew themselves entirely from the public gaze. Common rumor said it was the empress, but this was not true. It was the Countess Walewska, with the son she had borne to her host, whom she still adored. They remained but a few days and departed as mysteriously as they had come.

Base females thronged the precincts of the imperial residence, openly struggling for Napoleon's favor as they had so far never dared to do. Success too frequently attended their efforts. But, the one woman who should have been at his side was absent. It is certain that she made an honest effort to come, and apartments were prepared for her reception in the little palace at Porto Ferrajo. Her father, however, thwarted her at every turn, and finally she was a virtual prisoner at Schonbrunn.

So manifest was the restraint that her grandmother, Caroline, queen of the two Sicilies, cried out in indignation, "If I were in the place of Maria Louisa, I would tie the sheets of my bed to the window frame and flee." Committed to the charge of the elegant and subtle Neipperg, a favorite chamberlain, whom she had first seen at Dresden, he plied her with such insidious wiles that at last her slender moral fiber was entirely broken down and she fell a victim to his charms. As late as August Napoleon received impassioned letters from her. Then she grew formal and cold. At last, under Metternich's urgency, she ceased to write at all. Her French attendant, Meneval, managed to convey the whole sad story to her husband, but the emperor was incredulous and hoped against hope until December. Then only he ceased from his incessant and urgent appeals.—"Life of Napoleon; the Exile and His Return," by Professor W. M. Sloane, in Century.

Went One Better.

A tradesman in Sunderland had a lad in his employ. The lad's mother was a widow in bad circumstances; consequently the lad was poorly clad. The tradesman kindly proffered to get the boy a new suit of clothes, and the boy agreed to repay him at sixpence per week out of his wages.

The first Monday after this arrangement had been made the lad did not come to work as usual, and on his employer sending to inquire the reason his mother said, "He looked so respectable she was trying to get him a better job."—London Answers.

The Selfish Person.

The great pity of the selfish person is not that he robs others of pleasure or comfort, but that he is so thoroughly unhappy himself. The selfish person is never satisfied, never content. When he has greedily taken all, he still wants more, while the unselfish person finds real happiness in giving to others the little he has. From a purely selfish point of view the unselfish person is the happier.

ATTEMPT AT BUYING LAND.

It Requires Tact to Buy Timber Land in the Mountains.

It requires time and tact to buy mountain land. The following is a typical experience:

"I was riding along Tag river, in Kentucky, when I saw a tract of land upon which I concluded it would pay to erect a small sawmill. I hunted up the owner, finding him seated on a log fishing."

"Do you own this land?"

"Sh', stranger! Fast bite I've had," he answered in a stage whisper. In about a minute he caught a fish, and I repeated my question.

"Got any more?" he asked. I gave him a chew, and in a few minutes he said, "Which land?"

"That land along the road for a mile back."

"Yaas."

"How much have you?"

"What you frum?"

"Chicago. How much land have you?"

"Five thousand acres."

"What do you ask for it?"

"Waal, it's worth $20 an acre, but for cash I'll swap for $10 an acre."

Kain't talk 'bout it now. Hev ter ketch fish for supper."

"I sat on a log beside him for three hours, neither of us saying a word, until he arose and started home, while I untitled my horse and followed."

"That night I got as far as to see his deed for the land and get a description."

"It may be a little short," he said, "an I reckon I'd take $40 for it without surveyin'."

"No inducement would move him from that figure, so I went on to the next tract, which I did not want, the timber being too thin."

"How much does Phillips want for his land?" I asked.

"Thousand dollars."

"Can you buy it for me?"

"How much is there of it?"

"A thousand acres."

"I reckon."

"Two weeks later I received a deed, paid $1,000, and when surveyed the tract measured 980 acres."—Washington Star.

CARLYLE AND THE CABBY.

How the Latter Lost the Trade of the Great Philosopher.

Carlyle was well known to London cabmen. For years he engaged a particular driver from the rank and refused to have any other. This man, however, lost his custom in a somewhat peculiar manner.

Some medical students got to know of his preference for the driver, and, getting hold of the driver one day, they inquired if he knew who his fare was, when he told them he did not. The students informed him that he was one of the most famous and eccentric writers of the day, and, giving him a book, advised him to appear to be reading it whenever Carlyle approached the stand.

Cabby, without any suspicion, acted on their advice, and when the old sage next came for a cab he seemed deeply impressed in a very pretentious book.

"Hello! What's that you're readin'?" inquired the Ecclefechan philosopher.

"A most hunt an' hint, topit, splendid book about that 'ere French revolution," was cabby's gushing reply.

"Eh, what d'oe you say? Let me see it," said Carlyle, holding out his hand.

"Oh, certainly, sir," said the driver, handing him a copy of his "History of the French Revolution."

"Weel, my man," inquired the sage, apparently delighted, "are ye sure that you're readin' this work intelligently?"

"Perfectly sure," said the cabby confidently. Then, thinking he ought to say something in praise of the book, he added, "Why, sir, it's almost as good as 'The Newgate Calendar'!"

The grim old Dumfriesshire glared at him, grunted out something, turned abruptly around and engaged the next cab. From that day Carlyle never looked at him, but stuck to the second man, who happened to have had the honor of driving most of the distinguished men of the century.—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

The Motherly Landlady.

A friend of mine changed his boarding place last week, going to one of those houses that advertise home comforts and a motherly landlady, which generally means that she is a person who will pry into one's private affairs and read long letters left lying about. This particular landlady happens to regard drinking and smoking as particular devices of the devil, so when my friend began to praise a new brand of tobacco at the dinner table the other night she saw her chance and promptly chipped into the conversation.

"Smoking makes men utterly selfish," she said, as a starter, enunciating her words as if she were sawing ice into symmetrical blocks.

My friend was dazed for a moment, for he had not much experience with people who denounce everything as wrong which they do not personally fancy, but he quickly recovered and answered: "Possibly so, but after all it's a stand-off, for abstinence from smoking seems to make people deucedly impolite. Or possibly you indulge a little? So many of the ladies enjoy their cigarettes nowadays."

Then the storm broke.—Boston Post.

Differences.

"They say that human nature is always the same," said the middle aged lady. "But I don't think so."

"What's the reason?" asked her niece.

"Twenty years ago girls read magazines and did needlework. Now they study a road map and learn to use a monkey wrench."—Washington Star.

Mother-love is mixed with daily, hourly sacrifice. The love increases with the sacrifice it entails. The more a mother suffers and endures for her little one, the more precious it becomes. She loves it because she has labored and suffered for it. The physical organs concerned in maternity affect a woman's entire constitution to a degree only half realized by many doctors. Women are often treated specially for sick headaches, dyspepsia, melancholy, or what is supposed to be a liver or kidney affection or heart disease, when in reality the whole trouble is with the reproductive organs. This delicate and intricate organism and the rational treatment for its peculiar ailments is a life study for the wisest physician. Probably no practitioner living has a higher reputation in this special direction, than Dr. R. V. Pierce, Chief Consulting Physician of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, of Buffalo, N. Y. His "Favorite Prescription," is the most perfect remedy ever known for all "female complaints." It gets at the source of the trouble from the inside. It is not merely temporary, external, local, bolstering-up or palliative. It is a cure. It directly tones and strengthens the internal organs, restores them to health and regularity, and completely banishes the continual weakness, drag and drain which wear out body and mind. Its sale exceeds the combined sales of all other medicines for women.

In every American household, there should be a copy of Dr. Pierce's great work, "Common Sense Medical Advice," 100 pages, illustrated. One copy free to any address on receipt of one cent stamps to pay for mailing only. The Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.

DON'T GO IT BLIND.

No Need for Guess Work—Follow the Advice of People We Know.

A Scotch ploughman working in a field was accosted by two college dons, who, walking along the road, had disagreed on some topic about the dead languages. Agreeing to leave it to the yoke to decide, they introduced the disputed point with "Is Greek a hard language to read?" To their surprise the answer came, "I don't know; I never tried it." Such caution, such prudence, such wariness may have been all right coming from a Scotchman, but it would have been utterly out of place if Mrs. Edward Orr, of 220 Thompson street, had exhibited it when advised by her sister to use a well-tried remedy for her complaint. It is the same with East Liverpools. Caution, prudence or wariness is quite unnecessary when you have to use a kidney remedy. All that is required is simply to follow the advice of people you know. No need to go it blind. Read this. Mrs. Orr says: "My sister, Mrs. Borland, of Pittsburgh, while visiting me, recommended Doan's Kidney Pills so highly that I was induced to try them. I had been having a severe attack of kidney disease, sometimes I would be so bad I could not get up. Many times my neighbors have come in and found me lying on the lounge suffering, when I intended to do a big day's work. I was so miserable I could do nothing. After my sister told me of the pills, I made up my mind to take some, and got a box at W. & W. Pharmacy. They did just what they claimed they would do—cured me sound and well in a few days. My little girl was feeling poorly, and had a sallow complexion for some time. I gave her a few doses, and now she is looking splendidly."

Doan's Kidney Pills are for sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents, or mailed by Post-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., agents for the United States.

How Florida Land Turtles Are Lured out of Their Holes.

W. H. Gilbert, locksmith, astronomer, fisherman, scientist, hunter and capitalist, is a great fancier of gopher meat, and has thought of many ways of catching the game.

Some time ago he learned that there was a family living in the northwestern part of the county which boasted of young men who could "sing" gophers out of their holes. He traveled many miles to ascertain if the report was really true.

The young men were reluctant at first to give an exhibition that might reveal their secret, but Mr. Gilbert had a number of persuasives along and finally they consented.

The young men equipped themselves with a gunny sack and a pointed stick about five feet long. A half mile from the house, in the wire grass of the rolling pine land, they found the hole of a gopher. They covered the entrance of his tunnel with a sack and planted the stick over the tunnel. Then all of the men lay down about 20 feet away and one of them sang.

In a half hour the sack was seen to move slightly, whereupon one of the young men jumped up quickly and ran to the stick, which he pressed deep into the ground, cutting off the gopher's retreat. The other reached his hand into the hole and brought out a big gopher, which was made into a delicious stew for their dinner. Mr. Gilbert, discoursing on the incident, says:

"I have since learned that the Mexicans, who are very fond of gophers, pursue this method, except that they do not sing. The singing is entirely superfluous. Curiosity is what kills the gopher, as it has killed the historic cat. The animal evidently is curious to learn what it is that has darkened the threshold of its abode and comes forth to see. The stick does the rest. I have tried the same plan myself and very successfully."—Florida Times-Union.

Strange Beginning of a Friendship.

I remember the anecdote my stepfather, Count d'Auro, who entered La Fleche before the regulation age of 8, used to tell me. It was the first time he had left his mother, and he was somewhat bewildered by the roughness of his comrades, who affected the airs of old troopers. To make sure that he was not a milkop, one of them, a veteran of 12, made him lay his hand flat on the ground, stepped on it and crushed one of his fingers. This tormentor was the future General Baraguay d'Hilliers. The victim, who nearly fainted, bore it bravely, however. "And this was the beginning," my stepfather used to add half a century later, when showing his deformed finger, "of a friendship that lasted all our lives." This happened shortly after the first empire, when Roman virtues were emulated, but one must not infer from this isolated fact that stoicism flourishes vigorously in the French educational system.—Th. Bentzon in Century.

THE EDELWEISS MYTH.

It Is Not a Rare Plant, Nor Does It Grow at Very Great Heights.

It is commonly reported and is no less commonly believed by the inexperienced tourist that edelweiss is a plant which only grows in the most dangerous and inaccessible situations. Of course with it, as with any other Alpine plant, this may now and then happen. But as a rule it is found on rough and rather stony slopes of grass, the ordinary pasture of sheep and goats, at heights ranging from about 6,000 to 8,000 feet above the sea level. It is not often met with below the former limit and seldom above the latter. Once it could be plucked—probably it has now been exterminated—by the side of a path a few hundred feet above Zermatt and within half an hour of the hotels. It was abundant, and no doubt still is, all about the little inn at the Tosa falls, and it may be picked in handfuls within a couple of hours' easy walk from the baths of San Bernardino. That it is a great rarity is also an article of faith, but this is another myth. It is doubtless a plant local rather than universal in the Alps, but there are few districts where it does not occur, often abundantly. What has caused it to be so prized is difficult to understand. It is an everlasting, but that is almost equivalent to saying that it has no great beauty. The plant attains a height of about four inches, having one or two flowers on a stem. These are star shaped, a few pointed rays down covered, as if they were cut out of pale gray velvet, surrounding two or three yellowish tufts. The dry stem and narrow leaves are similarly covered. Its scientific name is Gnaphalium leontopodium, and the genus to which it belongs has three or four representatives in the Alps, one of them, G. dioicum, being also abundant in dry moors in Britain. It is, in short, a flower quaint rather than beautiful.

The edelweiss is an extremely easy plant to raise from seed and should be treated as an annual. The seed can be obtained readily for a few pence from any respectable nurseryman. It is, however, a very difficult plant to transplant with any success. Sometimes the edelweiss, when torn from its native mountain and set out in a garden, will have sufficient life in it to flower and then pine away and die. This is the almost invariable result of these attempted transplantations.

It may be added that edelweiss, when grown on anything like the sea level, or, in fact, anywhere away from home, entirely loses its distinctive character and becomes worthless as a garden plant. Perhaps these remarks will save some tourists' sponge bags from being filled, which, if they do not become heated and die on the journey, will barely linger long enough to enable the proud owner to point to them as evidence that he has actually been to Switzerland.—London Standard.

The Prolonged Bath.

Modern Medicine says that a patient in the St. Louis hospital was recently kept immersed in a bathtub for six weeks for the cure of a large sloughing abscess, a current of water being constantly passed through the tub. The writer has, within the last 20 years, treated many cases of gangrene, crushed limbs, sloughing sores, etc., by this method and has found better results than by any other. Its success is due to the aseptics secured by the constant immersion. The presence of a large quantity of water is not favorable to the development of pus-forming germs, so that suppuration is lessened and at the same time the poisons resulting from the action of the disease germs are washed away. These poisons, when left in contact with the tissues, paralyze the living cells and destroy them, thus hindering the reparative efforts, but by the constant cleansing effected by the contact of water kept pure by frequent renewal the tissues are protected from the toxic influence of these poisons, and healthful repair is thus promoted.

While in Vienna some 12 years ago the writer found patients living in tubs of water who had been immersed for periods varying from six months to a year or more. The cells of the body are accustomed to contact with moisture. In this respect they may even be compared to aquatic animals. The blood cells are carried by a current of watery fluid, and the tissue cells are all constantly bathed in this fluid, so that the contact of water with the living tissues is a condition closely analogous to that which is naturally maintained within the body.—New York Ledger.

The Selfish Person.

The great pity of the selfish person is not that he robs others of pleasure or comfort, but that he is so thoroughly unhappy himself. The selfish person is never satisfied, never content. When he has greedily taken all, he still wants more, while the unselfish person finds real happiness in giving to others the little he has. From a purely selfish point of view the unselfish person is the happier.

Went One Better.

A tradesman in Sunderland had a lad in his employ. The lad's mother was a widow in bad circumstances; consequently the lad was poorly clad. The tradesman kindly proffered to get the boy a new suit of clothes, and the boy agreed to repay him at sixpence per week out of his wages.

The first Monday after this arrangement had been made the lad did not come to work as usual, and on his employer sending to inquire the reason his mother said, "He looked so respectable she was trying to get him a better job."

Attempt at Buying Land.

It Requires Time and Tact to Buy Mountain Land in the Mountains.

"I was riding along Tag river, in Kentucky, when I saw a tract of land upon which I concluded it would pay to erect a small sawmill. I hunted up the owner, finding him seated on a log fishing.

"Do you own this land?"

"Sh, stranger! Fast bite I've had," he answered in a stage whisper. In about a minute he caught a fish, and I repeated my question.

"Got any more?" he asked. I gave him a chew, and in a few minutes he said, "Which land?"

"That land along the road for a mile back."

"Yaas."

"How much have you?"

"What you from?"

"Chicago. How much land have you?"

"Five thousand acres."

"What do you ask for it?"

"Waal, it's worth $20 an acre, but for cash I'll swap for $10 an acre. Kain't talk 'bout it now. Hev ter ketch fish for supper."

"I sat on a log beside him for three hours, neither of us saying a word, until he arose and started home, while I mounted my horse and followed.

"That night I got as far as to see his deed for the land and get a description."

"It may be a little short," he said, "an I reckon I'd take $40 for it without surveyin'."

"No inducement would move him from that figure, so I went on to the next tract, which I did not want, the timber being too thin.

"How much does Phillips want for his land?" I asked.

"Thousen dollars."

"Can you buy it for me?"

"How much is there of it?"

"A thousen acres."

"I reckon."

"Two weeks later I received a deed, paid $1,000, and when surveyed the tract measured 980 acres."—Washington Star.

CARLYLE AND THE CABBY.

How the Latter Lost the Trade of the Great Philosopher.

Carlyle was well known to London cabmen. For years he engaged a particular driver from the rank and refused to have any other. This man, however, lost his custom in a somewhat peculiar manner.

Some medical students got to know of his preference for the driver, and, getting hold of the driver one day, they inquired if he knew who his fare was, when he told them he did not. The students informed him that he was one of the most famous and eccentric writers of the day, and giving him a book, advised him to appear to be reading it whenever Carlyle approached the stand.

Cabby, without any suspicion, acted on their advice, and when the old sage next came for a cab he seemed deeply impressed in a very pretentious book.

"Hello! What's that you're readin'?" inquired the Ecclefechan philosopher.

"A most hoot an' hoot, titop, splendid book about that 'ere French revolution," was cabby's gushing reply.

"Eh, what dae ye say? Let me see it," said Carlyle, holding out his hand.

"Oh, certainly, sir," said the driver, handing him a copy of his "History of the French Revolution."

"Weel, my man," inquired the sage, apparently delighted, "are ye sure that you're readin' this work intelligently?"

"Perfectly sure," said the cabby confidently. Then, thinking he ought to say something in praise of the book, he added, "Why, sir, it's almost as good as 'The Newgate Calendar'."

The grim old Dumfriesshire glared at him, grunted out something, turned abruptly around and engaged the next cab. From that day Carlyle never looked at him, but stuck to the second man, who happened to have had the honor of driving most of the distinguished men of the century.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

The Motherly Landlady.

A friend of mine changed his boarding place last week, going to one of those houses that advertise home comforts and a motherly landlady, which generally means that she is a person who will pry into one's private affairs and read long letters left lying about. This particular landlady happens to regard drinking and smoking as particular devices of the devil, so when my friend began to praise a new brand of tobacco at the dinner table the other night she saw her chance and promptly chipped into the conversation.

"Smoking makes men utterly selfish," she said, as a starter, enunciating her words as if she were saving ice into symmetrical blocks.

My friend was dazed for a moment, for he had not much experience with people who denounce everything as wrong which they do not personally fancy, but he quickly recovered and answered: "Possibly so, but after all it's a stand-off, for abstinence from smoking seems to make people deucedly impolite. Or possibly you indulge a little? So many of the ladies enjoy their cigarettes nowadays."

by many doctors. Women are often treated specially for sick headaches, dyspepsia, melancholy, or what is supposed to be a liver or kidney affection or heart-disease, when in reality the whole trouble is with the reproductive organs. This delicate and intricate organism and the rational treatment for its peculiar ailments is a life study for the wisest physician. Probably no practitioner living has a higher reputation in this special direction, than Dr. R. V. Pierce, Chief Consulting Physician of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, of Buffalo, N. Y. His "Favorite Prescription," is the most perfect remedy ever known for all "female complaints." It gets at the source of the trouble from the inside. It is not merely temporary, external, local, blotting-up or palliative. It is a cure. It directly tones and strengthens the internal organs, restores them to health and regularity, and completely banishes the continual weakness, drag and drain which wear out body and mind. Its sale exceeds the combined sales of all other medicines for women.

In every American household, there should be a copy of Dr. Pierce's great work, "Common Sense Medical Adviser," 100 pages, illustrated. One copy free to any address on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to pay for mailing only. World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.

DON'T GO IT BLIND.

No Need for Guess Work—Follow the Advice of People We Know.

A Scotch ploughman working in a field was accosted by two college dons, who, walking along the road, had disagreed on some topic about the dead languages. Agreeing to leave it to the yokel to decide, they introduced the disputed point with "Is Greek a hard language to read?" To their surprise the answer came, "I don't know. I never tried it."

Such caution, such prudence, such wariness may have been all right coming from a Scotchman, but it would have been utterly out of place if Mrs. Edward Orr, of 220 Thompson street, had exhibited it when advised by her sister to use a well-tried remedy for her complaint. It is the same with East Liverpool. Caution, prudence or wariness is quite unnecessary when you have to use a kidney remedy. All that is required is simply to follow the advice of people you know. No need to go it blind. Read this. Mrs. Orr says: "My sister, Mrs. Borland, of Pittsburg, while visiting me, recommended Doan's Kidney Pills so highly that I was induced to try them. I had been having a severe attack of kidney disease; sometimes I would be so bad I could not get up. Many times my neighbors have come in and found me lying on the lounge suffering, when I intended to do a big day's work. I was so miserable I could do nothing. After my sister told me of the pills, I made up my mind to take them, and got a box at W. & W. Pharmacy. They did just what they claimed they would do—cured me sound and well in a few days. My little girl was feeling poorly, and had a sallow complexion for some time. I gave her a few doses, and now she is looking splendidly."

SIREN SONGS FOR GOPHERS.

How Florida Land Turtles Are Lured Out of Their Holes.

W. H. Gilbert, locksmith, astronomer, fisherman, scientist, hunter and capitalist, is a great fancier of gopher meat, and has thought of many ways of catching the game.

Some time ago he learned that there was a family living in the northwestern part of the county which boasted of young men who could "sing" gophers out of their holes. He traveled many miles to ascertain if the report was really true.

The young men were reluctant at first to give an exhibition that might reveal their secret; but Mr. Gilbert had a number of persuasives along and finally they consented.

The young men equipped themselves with a gunny sack and a pointed stick about five feet long. A half mile from the house, in the wire grass of the rolling pine land, they found the hole of a gopher. They covered the entrance of his tunnel with a sack and planted the stick over the tunnel. Then all of the men lay down about 20 feet away and one of them sang.

In a half hour the sack was seen to move slightly, whereupon one of the young men jumped up quickly and ran to the stick, which he pressed deep into the ground, cutting off the gopher's retreat. The other reached his hand into the hole and brought out a big gopher, which was made into a delicious stew for their dinner. Mr. Gilbert, discouraging on the incident, says:

"I have since learned that the Mexicans, who are very fond of gophers, pursue this method, except that they do not sing. The singing is entirely superfluous. Curiosity is what kills the gopher, as it has killed the historic cat. The animal evidently is curious to learn what it is that has darkened the threshold of his abode and comes forth to see. The stick does the rest. I have tried the same plan myself and very successfully."—Florida Times-Union.

"Husband, what did the doctor say about me?"

"He said that you must give up religion and take to drink."

"What!"

"Well, he said you must stop doing so much church work and take a tonic."—Louisville Courier-Journal.
